

Edited

2.10.14

15.9.14

"Parasites", such a charming name to call someone, especially when that someone totals a population over 900 inmates. Not only was the comment made by our beloved Attorney General, it was said during an interview on national tv. I know most of the public would agree with him but people need to remember that a good portion of that population will at some point return to the (so called) civil world. A human has only so much tolerance for being bullied before Fight or Flight becomes necessary and then what? who takes responsibility for the actions of a person who is not in a stable mind? The one who was bullied that lashed out is who! Quite often you see A Current Affair or 60 minutes reporting about it either being done by school kids or angry neighbours but what about those in a position of authority that abuse their power, and my what a lot of power he has, who's keeping an eye on them? All too often I hear stories impressing images of how the Northern Territory is a law unto itself, written or proclaimed by the locals, at what point does the Federal Government poke its nose in and set things right again? When was the last time the laws and acts were reviewed/changed? You call it justice, I call it a lying, cheating useless C.O.A.T. What sort of system do we have where the legal fraternity sits down at the Coffee Bar or Cavenagh st working out deals before you get to speak to them? Things like this is gross malpractice and surely a breach of the law, this sort of practice needs to be investigated and put to an end. Far too many people are in jails because they don't know the law and have been taken advantage of to please the D.P.P. A Royal Commission into the Northern Territory legal system would abolish such unpunished atrocities, you could start with Adan